GOOD CISTERN PLAN.

Arrangement by Which the Water Supply Is Kept Free from Dirt and Cistern More Easily Cleaned.

I have had a cistern like the one shown in the cut for 14 years and have always had an unfailing supply of good water. It gives advantages over the single form of cistern. The smaller, or receiving cistern. shown at right of cut, takes the water from the roof spouts, where it remains until sediment has settled to the bottom. The water may be then turned into the larger, or main cistern, by opening valve in connecting pipe, c. by the rod, d. The end of this pipe, a. is placed about one foot from the bottom of the receiving cistern, to prevent drawing the sediment into the larger one. The check, c. may be any good gate valve to which the rod, d, is attached for opening and closing.

I find it much easier to clean a small cistern six feet deep than a large one. says a writer in Farm and Home. This small one may be emptied into the main cistern at any time and cleaned. even when the storage cistern is half

To prevent possibility of checking or cracking in the cement, allowing leaks in the side of either cistern where connecting pipe goes through, walls should be reinforced, as shown, with cement on the inside. The small cistern can be placed at any reasonable distance from the main cistern. With this arrangement it is not necessary to allow the roof first to wash off before turning in the water, thus losing what is often the greater part of the rainfall.

HOW CROPS WERE DOUBLED

Report of Consul Frank W. Mahin oi What Was Accomplished on Poor English Land.

Consul Frank W. Mahin, of Nottingham. England, makes the following report on experiments recently made in England, showing what liberal fertilizing will do with naturally poor land in the way of increasing yields:

"Experiments carried out during the past season in this country demonstrate what liberal fertilizing may do with raturally poor clay land. In one case mangold field was divided into five plats, one of which was left unmanured for comparison, while the others rereived 48 pounds per acre of superphosphate, with and without nitrogenous manure. The unmanured plat gave 12% tons of roots per acre. Superphosphate alone raised this yield to 2014 tons. superphosphate and 224 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre raised the yield to 2714 tons; superphosphate and 448 pounds of nitrate raised it to 24 tons. and superphosphate and 672 pounds of nitrate raised it to 29 tons.

"The respective increases due to mapuring on the four fertilized plats were. therefore, in round figures, 7, 14, 21 and 26 tons per acre, and, if the cost of the fertilizers be taken into account the an interesting group. No. 1, which average cost of the increase in roots was less than 73 cents per ton-considered a very cheap price to pay for mangolds in a season not especially favorable to their growth. The board of agriculture estimates the mangold crop of the country for 1904 at 18% tons per acre. The yield of the best plat referred to. 39 tons per acre, was therefore double he average.

"An experimental cat crop followed a crop of roots. Without manure the yield was 27 bushels of oats and 1.904 pounds of straw per acre. With 336 pounds of superphosphate per acre the yield was 34 bushels of oats and 2,350 pounds of straw, and with superphosphate and 112 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre 41 bushels of oats and 2,688 pounds of straw: while superphosphate with 224 pounds of nitrate, applied in two dressings, gave 47 bushels of oats and 3,136 pounds of straw. In each case the increase in grain and straw is taken as worth, roughly, twice the cost of the fertilizers employed in producing it.

"The board of agriculture's estimates of a normal oat crop indicate that the yield of 47 bushels per sere is at least ten bushels beyond the average from ordinary soil."

MAKING STEERS PAY.

Experiment Which Proves the Superiority of the Long-Keep Steers Over Short-Keep Ones.

At the Ontario agricultural college the long-keep steers have always produced cheaper gains than the shortkeep steers. It is impossible, however, to produce a pound of gain in live weight at the price per pound for which live animals are sold. There is, therefore, a loss on every pound of increase which a steer makes, and the more pounds of increase which he is required to make before he is fit for market, the greater the loss will be. Thus a steer which requires to gain only 200 pounds before he is fit for market, will give a smaller loss than the steer which requires to gain 300 pounds before he is finished. It is true, as mentioned before, that the long-keep steer can be made, with careful feeding, to produce a pound of gain at a less cost than the short-keep steer; but this difference in favor of the long-keep steer is not suf-ficient to counterbalance the disadvanficient to counterbalance the disadvantatge in having to put on a greater number of pounds. The only chance of profit that the feeder has is in making the carcass which he purchases worth so much more per pound than he paid for it that it will wipe out the loss incurred in producing the gain in weight. This being the case, it follows that a person can afford to pay more per pound for a fleshy steer which can be finished in a short time than for a steer which requires to make a larger gain, and consequently calls for L lorger period of feeding. make a larger gain, and consequently calls for a longer period of feeding.

FRUIT AT WHOLESALE.

This Custom Is Steadily Growing in Big Cities-Keep It in Cold Storage.

A practice which is steadily growing in favor among town folk, not alone in wholesale and keeping it in cold storcost of such storage is now inconsiderable; in most progressive towns space to accommodate a package of about the dimensions of an ordinary flour barrel may be rented for 25 cents a month, or 50 cents for a season of three or four months. Those persons who have once tried the practice are enthusiastic over its advantages, maintaining not only that it is much cheaper than to buy fruit in small quantities from day to day in the retail market, but also that it enables them to get the best fruit that comes to market and to have only the best all the time.

There is a valuable suggestion here for the farmer and fruit grower, says the Country Gentleman. Apples, grapes, pears, quinces, plums, apricots even peaches and melous, as well as bananas, oranges and grapefruit-can be kept sound and good for a surprising length of time in cold storage. At people come to realize this more generally, the opening for such a trade between townsfolk and country growers must increase immensely. There is such an opening now, and the fruit men whose warms are near enough to the cities to permit them to carry their fruit to the consumer have such an opportunity as never was known before to market all their produce of a kind at one time-the best time for them-and at good prices. Large growers living at too great a distance from any city to carry their fruit to market themselves would find it both profitable and advantageous to employ an agent in the city to handle this trade for them, soliciting orders from consumers for fruits in bulk at wholesale prices and making the deliveries in season. It is easy enough to find plenty of buyers for good fruits; the fruit-eating habit has increased enormously in the last decade or twoindeed there has been a remarkably widespread awakening to a realization of the value of fruit as a staple article of diet. The one thing needful is to bring the grower and the consumer together. A highly profitable trade it bound to follow. Having started with fruit, there is no reason why such direct business relations between farmer and city householder should not broaden to include eggs, butter, vegetables and farm produce in general. The consumer would much prefer to deal directly with the producer, whenever possible, rather than with some middleman, be he commission merchant, wholesaler or retailer -- not alone because doing so would be in the long run appreciably cheaper, but still more because it would enable him to get the best of the farmer's goods and get them more quickly and in fresher, better shape The grower who exerts himself to dispose of his product in this way will soon find that he has secured a good profitable and sure market for all the produce he can supply.

RANGE FOR LEGHORNS.

This Breed of Fowls Needs Plenty of CUTTON Room in Which to Run-Good Breed for the Farm.

In case the fowls must be confined in a limited space, one should not consider the Leghorns, and particularly the White Leghorns, for they are nervous and require a range of coniderable area to do their best. On the farm, where they may have this range in colonies, they will probably produce more eggs than any other preed, but if poultry is raised on the farm for the purpose of selling both eggs and carcass, then the Leghorns should be crossed with some heavy breed or two breeds kept, one for the eggs and one for the carcass.

Another thing about the Leghorns is that they are timid and must be is a good plan to give the flock over to the care of one person and keep other people away from them; they must also be fed regularly for best results. Like all living things that are nervous, they are impatient of anything that does not suit them, and an hour's difference in the time of ing may make some difference the ogg return.

Electricity from Cats.

An Indiana genius proposes to util ize cats for the generation of electric current for lighting. His purpose is to round up the cats and drive them through a chute so that they will pass under rotating brushes, which will abstract the desired current. The invention might be further improved by the employment of mice, so that the cats could be drawn through the chute by induction. Just how much feline power is required to light an incandescent lamp has yet to be ascertained

"O. E., 1841" on Turtle Shell.

The latest turtle finding story comes from Sicklerville, Pa. In 1881 John Thornton, of that town, found a turtle in his strawberry patch marked "O. E., 1841." Thornton put his own initials on it with the date 1881, and let it go. Samuel Brannin found it a few days ago not 500 yards from the place where Thornton let it go. The "O. E." doubtless stands for Obadiah Eldridge, a former resident of Sickler-

Middlesex, N. Y., July 3.—(Special)—
That Rheumatism can be cured has been proved beyond a doubt by Mrs. Betsey A. Clawson had Rheumatism and had it bad, all her acquaintances know. They also know she is now cured. Dodd's K'dney Pills did it. Mrs. Clawson tells the story of her cure as follows:

"I was an invalid for most five years caused by Inflammatory Rheumatism, helpless two-thirds of the time. The first year I could not do as much as a baby could do; then I rallied a little bit and then a relapse. Then a year ago the gout set in my hands and feet. I suffered untold agony and in August, 1903, when my husband died, I could not ride to the grave.

"I only took two boxes of Dodd's Kid.

"I only took two boxes of Dodd's K'dney Pills and in two weeks I could wait on myself and saw my own wood. I dug my own potatoes and gathered my own garden last fall. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pils put the Kidneys in shape to take all the uric acid out of the blood.

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching, and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap and one application of Cuticura Cintment, and was soon entirely well. Any person having doubt about this wonderful cure may write to me.
